

Literacy

In literacy we have learnt many different things. We have all enjoyed the work we have been given to do.

Poetry

We read a little bit of poetry and then had to write poems of our own. We looked at different types of poems and read poems off the smart board. The poems we wrote about were about weather, feelings of our choice, which were happy, sad or angry, a poem about our family, which had to include similies and metaphors, then a poem that had to rhyme.

Biographies and autobiographies

We had to write questions for an interview and then put them in our homework book and ask a member of our family the questions. We then read a biography of Martin Luther King and of J.K. Rowling and then wrote a timeline of J. K Rowlings life. We then wrote our own autobiography of Pip Davenport.

Short stories

In class, we looked at some short stories, there was one man who was challenged to write a story with only six words in. It was called 'baby shoes for sale never worn'. We all had to write some short stories of our own, and had to do at least three.

Detective stories

We looked at Sherlock Holmes stories. Then we had to write a detective story of our own and it had to have four chapters in it. Each story had three couples in, two who did not do the crime but were obvious suspects, and one couple who looked innocent but were guilty. The story had to have a sad beginning and a nice end.

Animal cruelty

Also in literacy, we have been learning about animal cruelty and have had a discussion about killing animals and wasting them. Most of us said that it was cruel to kill animals just for their fur coats. However, some said it was cruel to kill them but without killing animals, we would not eat meat. Then we had a look at pictures of animals that had been treated badly.
