

A whole school visit to the Seated Man

Before the Easter break we held one of our Monday evening staff meeting on the North York Moors visiting the Seated Man just outside Castleton. The staff planned in their phase teams an offsite visit for their children which incorporated many of the subjects which we teach in school. From now until the end of the summer term all children from reception to Year 6 will visit the Seated Man and complete and share follow up work back at school.

The first class to visit were reception on Monday 23rd April. They managed the long walk up the hill to find him and then spent time making up stories about where he had come from and what he was looking for. They also did some rubbings on him with paper and crayons and then sang to him to cheer him up!
